WASHINGTON, Nov. 29, 1961.

I had a dream this morning which I feel called upon to give to the public.

I awoke with a lovely vision at the tomb of the late President McKinley, I can remember the scene distinctly. As I approached the tomb there seemed to be a man there, standing just in front of the outer portal. I had to bend down to go under the portal, which was about five feet high. I moved on to the opening, where the body had been carried into the tomb. All was closed and I could do no more, but after I had turned to go back I stopped and looked again, and the door was open and the tomb was filled with angels.

CAPT. MAHAN PLEASES ENGLAND.

Declares British Prestige Has Not Suffered by Boer War. LONDON, November 29.-Captain Alfred Mahan's essay in the December issue of the National Review, on the South African war, in which the writer maintains that British prestige has been rather augmented than diminished by the events of the past two years, is the subject of laudatory editorials in all of today's morning papers The Standard says:

"With the substantial benefits attained which Capt. Mahan indicates, we need care little about what is said by ill-informed or ill-natured persons abroad." The Morning Post, commenting on the article, thinks the British people would do well to note Capt. Mahan's criticisms as well as his appreciations. In the course of an important speech

T. Ritchie, secretary of state for home affairs, declared that Premier Salisbury's statement that "No shred of independence should be left to the republics," had been twisted and contorted in a way Lord Salisbury never intended. "It was not intended," he said, "that the Boers should ment, or that we insisted upon uncondi-tional surrender except in the sense that we could not again offer the terms which had been rejected.

"If any general representing the Boers in arms," said the speaker, "had made a proposition of peace on the condition that the Boers should, in the course of time, have a representative in the government, he was satisfied such a proposition would be referred home by Lord Kitchener and would form a basis for the conclusion of

"We desired a termination of hostiliconcluded Mr. Ritchie, "so that Boer and Briton could live together in peace and amity, and the same extraordinary success which has attended the British administration of Egypt would be re-peated in South Africa if the Boers would only frankly acknowledge their defeat and ask for terms.'

ask for terms."

Sir Edward Grey, M. P., speaking at Glasgow last night, declared that the country had been greatly shaken by what had happened during the South African war, and that it was only honest to tell the Irish members of parliament he believed it was impossible to repeat the home rule experiment of 1892. Sir Edward expressed his conviction that he is the second of the second in the expressed his conviction that no liberal government, dependent on the Irish vote, could do what the Irish people demanded.

TAKE A RECORD.

SEE HOW MANY FRIENDS ARE HURT BY It would be just as reasonable for a temperance advocate to drink a little diluted whiskey as to drink coffee, for one is as truly an intoxicant as the other, and persistence in the use of coffee brings on a variety of chronic diseases, notorious among which are dyspepsia, heart palpitation (and ultimately heart failure), frequently constipation, kidney diseases, many cases of weak eyes and trembling condition of the nerves. This is only a small percentage of the great variety of diseases which come from an unbalanced nervous system, caused by the persistent daily use of the drug caffeine, which is the active principle of coffee. Another bit of prima facle evidence about coffee is that the victims to the habit find great difficulty in giving it up.

They will solemnly pledge to themselves day after day that they will abandon the use of it when they know that it is shortening their days, but morning after morning they fail, until they grow to despise

Any one interested in this subject would be greatly surprised to make a systematic inquiry among prominent brain workers in America. There are hundreds of thousands of our most prominent people that have abandoned coffee altogether and are using Postum Food Coffee in its place, and for the most excellent reasons in the world. Many of them testify that III-health, nervous prostration, and consequent inability to work, has in times past pushed them back and out of their proper standing in life, which they have been able to re-gain by the use of good health, strong nerves and great vitality, since coffee has been thrown out

Barrett, Paris. What to Do With $500.

From the New York Commercial. While reading daily about the millions of capital in the great corporations of the country, and Mr. Rockefeller's income of $10,000,000 from Standard Oil stock, one cannot refrain from smiling at the recollection of good old times when the young man who had learned his trade started out for himself with a capital of $500. In those days reputation counted as capital, and if the young man possessed the nerve and ability his own employers sometimes trusted him with goods on six months' time. One of the largest wholesale drug houses in Maine was started in this way, but it was many years ago. What can the young man of today lo for himself with $500? He finds store rents in a city are from $500 to $5,000 at least, and in New York he might be required to pay down his $500 to secure a lease. In other words, it would be the first In the west, however, he can find opportunities in trade, or in fruit culture, or sheep raising, and his $500 wil' put him on his feet and give him the independence which he craves, but which he cannot hope to gain in Hay vs. Oats. From the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"I see," said the truck horse as he looked over the top of his morning paper, "I see that the price of oats is going up."
"Well," said the sagacious old nag that drew the doctor's phaeton, "there is one thing sure, and that is they can't put hay "And why not?" inquired the truck horse. "Because it would go against the grain,' replied the doctor's nag.
